

LIFE IN THE METROPOLIS.

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY THE SUN'S REPORTERS.

[illegible]

Clothing for the Needy.
The ladies of the Relief Association connected with the Warren Street Mission have found in their visits among the poor a great need of comfortable clothing. This distress is not confined to the children, but the whole family require clothing. The Relief Association has already furnished as far as possible the necessary underclothing, and also many articles garments. In the latter supply their resources are now at an end. Hats, coats, dresses, and boys' clothing and shoes, etc., are greatly in demand. It is therefore purposed to give a concert in the Hall of the Polytechnic Institution on the evening of the 10th inst. The admission ticket of admission will be a second-hand article, and the proceeds of the concert will be distributed to any who may prefer to pay in money, a limited number of tickets will be sold for the occasion. The ladies of the association are of the evening of the concert. Several talented artists have offered their services.

The Slippery Sidewalks.
Editor William Goodwin of the Beekman

street police fell and injured his head. He was taken to the hospital in front of St. Barnard's street and sustained a contusion of the head.

Frederick Konenick, a printer, fell from the slippery step of a car and sustained a scalp wound and fractured the skull.

Thomas Sadler of 156th street and Tenth avenue while walking at Eighth avenue and Thirtieth street, was struck by a car and killed. He was aged 40 years, single, married, of 4 Mulberry street, with one child, and his last leg was broken.

John J. Croshy of 100 West of Franklin street, at Spring street, stepped on a slide barely covered with snow and fell, breaking his leg in two places.

A Spree in Sullivan Street.

On the evening of the 26th ult. Michael Broer, a waiter for the steamship Idaho, exhibited a number of signs of intoxication while walking in the room of the hotel at 100 West of Franklin street. He was followed from the place by Jane Poole, Thomas Mahoney, and another ruffian. A block of two distant men followed them. Broer, who was armed, showed his money they knocked him down with a sand bag, and he was taken to the hospital.

while Mahoney and the other outlaw held him down and gagged him Jane Poole took his wallet from his pocket. The three then fled. In the General Session yesterday Recorder Hackett sentenced Jane Poole to ten years and Thomas Mahoney to fifteen years in State

A Centennarian Laborer.
On Jan. 28, in St. Francis Hospital, James Reilly died of senile ataxia. His age was 108 years and six months. He was born in Ireland in 1797. He was a permanent laborer until 1841. At the advanced age of 44, Mr. Reilly, with a small family, emigrated to New York, where he was employed as a laborer in the city of New York for nearly thirty years thereafter. A day laborer, he was old and infirm without previous record. Recalling at last to himself for work, or an active life, he was employed as a day laborer in the city of New York. Mr. Reilly's remains were buried by P. Colwell in Calvary Cemetery.

The Grand Master in the Potter's Field.
The committee appointed by the Aldermen in 1891 to investigate the Potter's Field, and the report of Mr. Nathaniel French in the Potter's Field, is daily in the receipt of letters from citizens complaining that the remains of Irishmen have been buried in the Potter's Field. The committee have been diligent in finding the Hospital attendants made the proper effort to find the remains of Irishmen buried in the Potter's Field.

The Legal Residence of Henry W. Genet
Harry Genet was plaintiff in a civil suit in the Common Pleas Court. His application was yesterday made to Judge Holmes by the de-fendant to commit him under the statute to give security for costs as a non-resident. The judge, however, refused to do so, on the ground that he had not given up his residence in this state, but it being insufficient for him at this date to occupy it, he was ordered to give security for costs on the ground that the change was permanent, the absence being forced, and therefore the motion was denied.

The Bronx Street Tragedy.
Yesterday afternoon ex-Congressman Nelson W. Young, with committee of the House of Representatives, and a number of other distinguished citizens, were in the city, and on their way to the city hall, to request Mayor Havens never to offer a reward for the apprehension of the murderers of Nicholas and Mary Ryan. The Mayor declared that the Ryans were murdered, and promised to offer a reward of $10,000.

Light Wanted.
The light wanted in the

[illegible]

cerning the bond robberies. Nothing except what already been published was in the report. Eighty thousand dollars' worth have been stolen, of which but $6,000 have been recovered.

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

Louise Lichtmay is to appear in German opera at the Harlem Theatre to-morrow evening.

Desiré Debuchy, in whose cellar the police found the hand grenades that frightened superintendent Matzell, was released by Justice Sherwood yesterday.

A bale of cotton fell on Hugh McGuire, of [illegible][illegible]

At the monthly church conference of the Episcopal clergy in the Church of the Incarnation in Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon a paper read by the Rev. Dr. Rhyance on "the position of a church with reference to popular amusements," which coming as it does from one of the best-known leaders of that denomination, may be taken as an index to the state of feeling on the subject in the church. The speaker warmly took the ground that the church has no right to interfere with the amusements of its members, any more than it has with their food.